Yank Fliers Describe Furious Pacific Battle In Which They Smashed Jap Invasion Fleet

By WASH FAYETTE

When a huge trailer-truck blew a 10-22 tire here while enroute to Baltimore, with a $4,000 load of cream from points southwest, it started trouble for the operator and required eight telephone calls before a new tire could be obtained to permit the truck to resume its journey 10 hours after the blowout.

Three or four garages here assisted in helping locate a tire, and finally one was obtained from the factory in Dayton and brought here by special messenger.

First of all was a long distance call to Washington, D. C., regarding priority for the tire. Three calls were made to Columbus, one to Dayton, one to Cincinnati, another to Alexandria, Va., and another to Union City, Indiana. I guess that checks up on eight calls.

And I heard the driver registering a kick because the new tire had cost him about $35 more than the last one he had purchased.

Ralph Nisley, Deputy Grand Master of the Grange in Fayette County, and one of the county's best known farmers, was holding a small, badly soiled American flag when I ran across him talking with Judge H. M. Rankin in front of the C. S. Haver Drug Store yesterday.

Ralph had picked the flag from the gutter, where it apparently had been broken from an automobile, and left lying in the grime by some thoughtless person.

"I am going to take this flag and dispose of it properly, for it has no business in the gutter," Ralph explained as I paused a moment.

This little incident shows the difference between the thoughtless individual who would leave the American flag, regardless of how small, in the gutter, and the person who instantly recognizes the fact that the flag should never be left on the ground, whatever the circumstances.

I have known for a long time that a great many people are minus knowledge of the courtesy and respect due the flag even though columns have been printed about it.

Have you noticed the large number of barelegged gals wherever you go? I thought you had.

From the smallest to the largest and from babes to women of 60, the number of bare legs or should I say lower extremities like we did a few years ago, are greater than ever before.

This is one way women are helping take a slap at the Japs, for since the silk shortage has caused a silk hose shortage, they are doing without much of the time.

There is every reason to believe that the practice will increase, and that bare legs will increase in popularity. Now, stand back—don't crowd!

One woman said that she never realized what a comfort it was to go without hose during the summer months until she tried it, and I heard several others echo their agreement to what she had said.

And, of course, in addition to comfort there is the little matter of saving many dollars for hose bills during the summer months. So much for bare legs.

'HOARDING' OF GASOLINE IS OHIO'S NO. 1 HAZARD

COLUMBUS, June 11.—(P)—Gasoline storage by individuals in anticipation of rationing "is becoming a No. 1 hazard in Ohio" and may result in great property and life loss by fire, State Fire Marshal Ray Gili declared today. He added that some authorities were considering classing individual gasoline storage as sabotage if fire, property damage or life loss resulted.

GENERAL EMMONS HEADQUARTERS, TERRITORY OF HAWAII, June 11.—(P)—Part of the epic story of the battle of Midway was told today by American Army pilots who with Navy and Marine fliers smashed Admiral Yamamoto's fleet and saved the Hawaiian Islands from invasion.

It is a story of cool courage and firm determination—of the unbeatable combination of American men and machines.

Its moral is that American planes alone may not win the war—but the boys flying them will—they and their companions on land and sea and those Americans who are working and sacrificing to produce the tools for the war machine.

American boys fought until they were dizzy for lack of sleep, and kept fighting. Planes did things they never were built to do and stood the test.

Too many—although the total number was not large—Americans died. But in dying they took enemies down in flames with them.

This part of the story is that of the Army's land-based aircraft, and for them the battle started the afternoon of June 3 when they got in the first punch.

Two huge Japanese fleets were approaching Midway, transports from the West and the battle fleet from another direction.

Commander Willis H. Hale, of Colorado Springs, commander of the Hawaiian bombardment command, told how Americans got in the first decisive blow.

Army bombers made their first contact with the enemy far to the west of Midway the afternoon of June 3. Bombs, dropped in a medium altitude attack, hit and damaged one cruiser or battleship which was left in flames, as were also one transport and one destroyer.

The following morning Army planes took off anticipating enemy planes from the second Japanese fleet—which was much closer than the force bombed the previous afternoon. Marine fliers also were in the air when the enemy arrived.

Twenty minutes later, Marine dive bombers swarmed down on Japanese ships, adding further destruction (Navy dive-bombers and torpedo planes also attacked about the same time but the details have not been released.)

At 8:30 A. M. Army heavy bombers—Flying Fortresses—attacked the Japanese battle fleet from a high altitude, hitting one carrier (Possibly the Army bombers also damaged other enemy vessels. All reports are not in.)

Meanwhile, Japanese planes from carriers were attacking Midway.

Their first attack made at a high level with heavy demolition bombs, lasted 38 minutes and was directed against both Sand Island and the nearby Eastern Island, which comprise Midway.

Japanese dive-bombers slipped out of the sun and attacked Midway's ground installations while pursuit planes followed with

MUNITIONS SHIP AFIRE AT PIER

Bloody See-saw Battles Rage In Both Libya and Russia

By CLARK LEE

GENERAL EMMONS HEADQUARTERS, Territory of Hawaii, June 11.—(P)—An explosive anti-aircraft shell hit a flying fortress piloted by Lieut. Jack D. Whidden, 25, of Van Nuys, Calif., and Lieut. Chuck R. Crowell, 22, Freeport, Ill., but they pressed home their attack hit and probably sank a Japanese destroyer in the battle of Midway.

They told about it in these words:

Jack: "We were flying along following our squadron leader through the clouds. He ordered our plane to prepare to drop bombs. Just then we burst through the clouds and there were some 20 to 25 ships beneath us and all of them blazing away at us."

Chuck: "That ack-ack was plenty thick. In fact very very thick. We were down real low for planes of our type—fortresses. I felt pretty scared."

Jack: "So did I feel scared for a few minutes. Then I got mad. So did Chuck. From then on we were too mad to be scared."

"This stuff (anti-aircraft fire) was getting pretty thick. We were flying right through it. Then an explosive shell hit our left wing. It cut the main spar and wrecked the flaps and damaged the ailerons. The cockpit suddenly filled up with smoke. It smelled like firecrackers. We thought for a while that we were on fire. That shell knocked down our rear gunner but he got up again and told me over the phone he could see a lot of holes in our left wing."

Chuck: "I remember the sound of that shell. It went 'ker-poom' and waves of hot air came up our legs."

Jack: "There was a destroyer directly ahead of us. It was our target and believe me we were really putting out. It must have thrown up 500 AAA shells in 30 seconds. The sky was black with exploding shells."

Chuck: "We kept going in and the bombardier laid one right on the stern of that destroyer. We could see the explosion and it was smoking badly as we pulled away."

Jack: "Then two zeros got after us. The tail gunner got the first one, which went down in flames. The side and rear gunners knocked the hell out of the second zero."

Chuck: "Our situation wasn't any too good. Our flaps were shot away. The left wing was a little wobbly. One motor wasn't functioning right. It was nearing night time and we were heading for a strange field on a small island."

Jack: "I believe it was pure luck that got us back plus, of course, smart navigation and swell leadership by our group commander, Capt. Ernest Manning."

U. S. NAVAL FORCES BLOCKS NAZIS FLEET

BRITISH WARSHIPS JOINED TO KEEP GERMANS IN PORT

LONDON, June 11.—(P)—Powerful United States naval units have joined the British home fleet in the tasks of blockading the Germans and protecting vital Allied shipping lanes by keeping Adolf Hitler's mightiest warships from joining the battle of the Atlantic.

The American forces, whose arrival was announced today, apparently are sufficiently strong to cope with the German super-battleship Tirpitz, the cruiser Admiral Hipper and other lesser craft should they venture forth from Norwegian bases which threaten Russia's Arctic supply line.

That the American warships have been operating from bases in the United Kingdom for more than a month was evident from the announcement that they had been greeted at sea and escorted to port by the British cruiser Edinburgh, which was sunk May 2 while protecting a Russia-bound convoy against attackers.

JAPAN'S WAR INDUSTRIES FOUND TO BE FINE TARGET

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(P)—U. S. Air Force leaders agree, says congressman-at-large Stephen Young, Ohio Democrat, "That nowhere else in the world are the fine targets which the concentration of Japan's war industries offer. General Doolittle's raid carried just a hint of what is to come."

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(P)—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard called the government's new wartime food committee together for its first meeting today to hear an optimistic report on production prospects in this country and to make a survey of prospective requirements for military, lend-lease and civilian needs.

The nine-member committee was created by the War Production Board last week to control the production, importation and allocation of all food supplies in the interest of the Allied war effort.

Wickard, the chairman, planned to lay before the committee a report that agricultural production prospects have rarely been better at this season of the year. The Federal crop reporting board said that if the weather continues favorable, previous records of farm production may be exceeded considerably.

This picture was in sharp contrast with conditions in German-controlled Europe. Reports received by Wickard through state department and other channels indicate that continental Europe faces one of its darkest food production seasons in years, due to an unusually severe winter, a late dry spring, and shortages of labor, fertilizer, seeds, farm power and equipment.

Wickard, who has been telling American farmers they must produce to the utmost if vital food needs are to be met, said the crop report supplied "added evidence that the productive capacity of this country will crush the Axis."

COLUMBUS SERVICE FORCES TO BE CUT

POLICE AND FIREMEN TO BE LET OUT AS ECONOMY MOVE

COLUMBUS, June 11.—(P)—Mayor Floyd F. Green, in the wake of the defeat of a special levy, today ordered sharp curtailment of municipal services and the layoff next Monday of 450 to 475 city employees, including nearly half the personnel of the Police and Fire Departments.

The action, affecting 150 policemen, 150 firemen and workers in every other division of municipal government, followed voters' rejection by a four to one margin Tuesday of a charter amendment which would have authorized city council to levy a 2.5 mill additional real estate tax to provide funds for the Police and Fire Departments for two years.

The 14-year-old Mrs. Manning held under bond pending grand jury arraignment, previously confessed to officers that she shot her husband of three months "because I was afraid he was going to kill me."

"Manning had threatened to kill me and my entire family," Sheriff Creech quoted Morgan as saying.

And This Is How To Crush Hitler!

One Decisive Defeat To War Machine Will Prove What Even Many Germans Already Suspect—That Der Fuehrer Is Not Invincible and That His Nazi Gang Can Be Beaten

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

(Wide World News Service)

Adolf Hitler's war upon the United Nations has, by his own volition, become a one-man's war—that of Der Fuehrer himself.

It follows that any defeat administered to the German war machine will, first and foremost, spell the defeat of the Nazi dictator. There is nobody behind whom he can hide; there is nobody to whom he can pass the buck; there is no situation thinkable whereby Nazidom can be defeated and its head, front and shoulders survive.

Two things, it seems to the observer who has been able to study Germany from the inside for the past twenty-odd years, can topple Hitler:

1. A crushing military defeat administered to the man who

SECRET MEETING HELD BY FDR AND RED COMMISSAR

Twenty-year Pact Between Russia and Britain Is Revealed at Same Time

DETAILS NOT DISCLOSED

Speed-up of Supplies from America, However, One of Points in Agreement

(By The Associated Press)

The United States, Great Britain disclosed today to have reached a pact and Russia were officially "full understanding" on "the urgent task of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

A White House announcement, issued simultaneously with a British statement in London, said President Roosevelt and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov had reached agreement regarding the problem of launching a mighty Allied offensive against Germany.

It did not state specifically, however, when or if the three powers had decided to open a second front—merely emphasizing the "urgent task" of creating a new front.

Simultaneously, the British announced the signing of a 20-year mutual assistance treaty with Russia even as the Axis armies pressed a violent assault against the Soviet Black Sea Naval base of Sevastopol, in the Crimea, and the German high command reported new gains in the battle of North Africa.

The pact, designed to become either the bulwark of a new security system or alternatively to run its own 20-year term, was quickly interpreted as a new avowal of a battle of extinction against Hitlerism between two European fronts.

In addition to second front strategy, the military discussions which had been carried on also in Washington concerned means of further improving deliveries of planes, tanks and other war materials to Russia.

The mutual assistance treaty, in which Russia and Britain swore interference with the internal affairs of other nations and territorial aggrandizement, represented the word of nations controlling five-twelfth of the earth's surface.

When the announcement had been made in London Russia's radio programs were interrupted for a reading of the text. The treaty was the fruit of talks which started last December in Moscow among Premier Joseph Stalin, Molotov and Eden.

The new British-Russian treaty pledged the two powers not to seek "territorial aggrandizement for themselves" after the war and to a policy of "not interfering in the internal affairs of other states."

Revelation that Russia's Foreign Commissar Molotov had come to the United States after the negotiations in London led to speculation that he might be arranging a similar pact with the United States.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden said the new Anglo-Soviet pact was signed May 26.

Eden said the pact was directed "against Hitlerite Germany" and that the signatory powers pledged themselves to rebuild post-war Europe on the design of the famous Atlantic charter signed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The pact provides for "common action to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period" and pledges the nations "not to enter into any negotiations" with the Hitler regime or any German government which fails to renounce aggression.

Japan was not mentioned in the treaty.

Eden's disclosure that Molotov had been in Washington was accompanied by the comment that the Soviet Commissar held "most useful and satisfactory talks with the President."

Molotov, bespectacled, 52-year-old right-hand man of Premier Joseph Stalin, arrived in Washington on May 29 and left on

550-MILE PIPE LINE TO BRING OIL EAST

No Relief for Gasoline Shortage Likely, However

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(P)—The War Production Board has approved immediate construction of the world's largest petroleum conduit—a 550-mile, 24-inch pipeline from Longview, Tex., to Salem, Ill.—to increase the flow of oil to the east.

The pipeline is to be completed about December 1 and will deliver 350,000 barrels of oil a day to the Salem area for movement east by tank cars, barges and Great Lakes tankers. Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, said the line probably would be used primarily for fuel oil. There was no indication that it would bring any relaxation of eastern gasoline rationing.

(Temperatures inside ordinary tanks in Libya have been reported as high as 120 degrees, Fahrenheit.)

"This new construction, using a type of gas refrigerator known all over the world and being coupled between the motor and the refrigerator," DNB said, "creates a cool interior for the tank even at the hottest outer temperature."

succeeding Judge Harry M. Rankin, who tendered his resignation due to the pressure of other duties.

Chairman Hill is now completing his committee and taking other steps toward pushing the work aggressively in Fayette County for the duration of the war.

Chairman Hill has been actively engaged in various phases of defense work, and has carried each phase of the work forward very successfully, in addition to his work as head of the big power company in this district.

Judge Rankin has spent many weeks getting the War Bond and Stamp sales under way in Fayette County, and the record under his guidance has been a good one.

One of the important phases of the work which has been given a great deal of attention is the pledge campaign whereby a specified amount of War Bonds and Stamps are purchased under the salary deduction plan.

fuelled, rearmed and took off again. They located the Japanese battle force once more in the afternoon and damaged one heavy cruiser and possibly another.

Col. Walter C. Sweeney, Jr., of San Francisco, led the squadron of Flying Fortresses in attacks both on June 3 and 4. (His father, Major General Walter C. Sweeney, came out of retirement this week to accept appointment as commander of the California State Guard and the State militia.)

Colonel Sweeney and other crewmen of the B17s praised their planes most enthusiastically, some saying: "These planes will win the war."

Crews of the Flying Fortresses said the Japanese fighters never pressed home attacks on the American bombers, not a single one of which was shot down, whereas the Fortresses downed three and possibly four enemy Zero fighters.

Sweeney's squadron lost two men on the ground at Midway but the only other casualty was one rear-gunner who was shot through the finger.

Fortresses crew members said the Zero pilots feared the firepower of the Fortresses, and seldom came close.

Sweeney gave this close-up account:

"We first contacted the enemy far out in the Pacific on the afternoon of June 3. There were over twenty Japanese ships lined in columns, with big ships in the center. We circled to the westward and came in with the sun at our backs.

"When the Japs sighted us they immediately deployed, each ship turning individually, trying frantically to avoid attack.

"We were at a medium altitude because of clouds, and anti aircraft was soon spitting at us. It was far more accurate than we expected, and many of our planes were bounced around a bit but none was seriously damaged.

"We picked out the biggest ships in sight, and laid our bombs in a pattern. Our bombardiers and rear gunners saw direct hits on one cruiser, one transport and possibly a second cruiser. One of our planes also reported hitting a battleship.

"Frankly, we didn't stay around too long to check up. Anti aircraft fire was making things hot, and we left in a hurry.

"We really were happy as we headed home. We had our first taste of battle and had given the Japs a taste of our striking power.

Over the inter-plane radios the gang was full of life and pep. We knew no fighters were in the air since there had been no carriers among the Jap ships, so there was nothing to worry about en route home.

"We landed at our base and crews started immediately to get the ships in shape for the following morning. We knew the Japs would be over then.

"We hopped off the next morning at dawn under orders to attack the same enemy force. We climbed 'way up and headed on out. After a short while new orders came over the radio, and we were told to attack even a larger Japanese battlefront which already was close to Midway.

"That change didn't puzzle our navigator, Lieut. Bill Adams of San Bernardino, Calif.

"Adams told me we would reach our targets at 34 minutes after the hour, and sure enough we hit it to the minute. Capt. Paul Payne of Des Moines, Ia., sighted the enemy first through broken clouds.

"There was a big battle line, with destroyers outside, then cruisers, battleships and away back the carriers which we picked for our target.

"We picked the biggest carrier and headed for it.

"The minute our bomb-bays opened, the ack-ack started coming up. It was fine shooting. The Japs must have good range-finders because the first shots were right at our altitude.

"The Jap ships started their frantic escape maneuvers but our pattern of bombs blanketed a carrier. We got at least one definite hit on the port bow of the carrier and saw flame and smoke of the explosion.

"Even in the midst of the attack we had time to chuckle over our bombardier who coolly remarked over the plane's radio: 'My God, that anti-aircraft looks beautiful through this telescope.'

"It looked beautiful, all right, but it also looked dangerous, so we headed out and away.

"A few Zeros came up at us but we lost them quickly due to our speed and their faintheartedness.

"We streaked for our base and found that Midway had been bombed while we were out there. We expected the Japs would come back, so we loaded as rapidly as possible and got back into the air and sped back toward the battle line.

"Adams was doing his job as usual. At four P. M. we found the enemy. We saw one carrier and one capital ship burning. They were lying dead, not making headway, and obviously they were badly damaged.

"No undamaged carriers were visible, so we picked out the biggest ship we could see—a heavy cruiser. We let go at it. One bomb struck it directly amidship and left it smoking and badly damaged.

"When we got back to our base our planes and crews both needed rest badly. So Lieut. Colonel Brook Allen took over with his squadron."

(Colonel Allen was a member of the Roberts Committee which investigated the December 7 Pearl Harbor episode.)

"I am sold on the effectiveness of high-level bombing. If we can get enough planes for attacks like these, nothing can escape us since we can lay bombs in patterns which no ship can avoid.

"We all had a grand time. Everybody was ready. Everybody did everything they should have done. There was perfect co-operation among the three branches of the service—the Army, Navy and the Marines."

MOST FAMOUS
MOUND BUILDER
TOBACCO PIPE

Unusual Effigy Pipe at Wickliffe, Ky., Greater Than Lindsey Find

A host of Fayette counties are interested in Indian relics, and there are many collections, chiefly of the more ordinary pieces, in this and adjoining counties.

Few of these collections contain Indian tobacco pipes, and, so far as known, none of them contain effigy pipes of human figures.

There are some choice Indian or Mound Builder pipes in the collection of stone age relics that Dr. J. M. Boyd presented to the Washington C. H. High School, and there are many fine pipes in various collections in Ohio and other states, but what is regarded as the world's finest tobacco pipe is in the famous King collection, at Wickliffe, Kentucky.

One other pipe that compares favorably with the famous pipe in the collection of Col. Fain White King and his wife, at the buried city at Wickliffe, where the Ohio River empties into the Mississippi, was unearthed by the late Jeff Lindsey, of Washington C. H., while exploring mounds on Shiloh Battlefield.

The pipe unearthed by Lindsey and associates was much less ornate than the King pipe, however, and the original is still in the office of the superintendent at Shiloh Battlefield.

The Lindsey pipe is a large one, carved of gray stone, and represents a nude Moundbuilder in one knee, with his long chin resting in his hand, somewhat in the position of "The Thinker" although this particular Mound Builder does not appear to be capable of a great deal of thinking.

The famous pipe in the King collection, represents the peak of artistic carving in the Mississippi Valley culture of early Americans, many hundreds of years ago. It is a smooth, red granite pipe, beautifully executed. This human figure, male, more than fourteen inches high and ten inches across, was taken from a mound containing many rare and unusual pieces such as royal maces, copper ornaments, beads and rock crystal ceremonial objects.

The workmanship indicates mastery, ability and knowledge of working stone. The portrayal of a cape across the back with copper spear points attached is an original idea in dress. The depicted strands of copper beads about the neck indicates a love of ornaments and the two monkey-like faces used as clasps at each side of the throat shows a knowledge of these animals. Countless man hours were required to hand polish this very hard granite or perhaps a more accurate statement woman hours, as it is believed the women did most of this type of work. Taken as a whole this aboriginal work of art indicates a strong Central American influence.

The tying of the hair at the back of the head reminds one of the famed mother-in-law's knot. The tamoshanter hat at its rakish angle displays a vain or to-be-in style attitude rather than for utilitarian use.

Many large museums throughout the United States have endeavored to secure this famous pipe at fabulous figures. This prehistoric tobacco pipe that has no duplicate and more than four hundred thousand other artifacts including the group of forty mounds located at Wickliffe, Kentucky, on a high, natural fortified bluff at the meeting of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Ponds, temples, house sites and the people who at one time controlled the flourspar industry, region and commerce of the whole district is gradually being revealed by skilled workers and trained hands for education and posterity.

On the front cover of the June issue of "Hobbies" is a good picture of the King tobacco pipe, and inside are side and back views, together with pictures of other unusual relics in the King collection.

A few residents of Fayette County have visited the famous buried city at Wickliffe, where the work of excavating a series of important mounds is still under way, and where one of the most interesting and enlightening collection of Mound Builder relics in existence may be viewed by those interested.

Enough steel goes into bottle caps each year to make at least 30 "ugly duckling" freighters.

Start right in tomorrow morning and take as much as will lie on a dime in a glass of water (hot or cold) half an hour before breakfast or in your morning cup of tea or coffee and keep this up for 30 days. Kruschen taken this way helps relieve such symptoms as sick headaches, bowel sluggishness and so-called bilious indigestion when due to insufficient flow of bile from the gall-bladder. You can get Kruschen, a famous English formula made in the U. S. A., at the Downtown Drug Store or any drug store. You must be satisfied or money back.

CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS Note: For an occasional cathartic or purgative, to relieve common constipation, we believe there is nothing better than quick-acting Kruschen in larger doses—try it according to directions on the bottle.

HOW TO CRUSH HITLER
TOLD BY CORRESPONDENT
OUT OF PRISON CAMP

considers himself greater than Napoleon;

2. Constant encouragement to that "Front der antaendigen Leute (front of decent people), presently submerged and as yet not organized, which, however, is rapidly in the making in the Reich.

Cards Are Stacked

It is obvious that those millions of Germans who are yearning for liberation from the Nazi yoke cannot come into their own unaided. The cards are stacked against them. The Gestapo lurks at every corner, ready to pick them up. They are gagged. They have no possibility of expressing their views publicly.

Hence, the myth of Hitler's invincibility must first be exploded. Already there are thousands upon thousands in high places who realize that the Fuehrer, despite the Goebbels propaganda, is not omniscient. They see where he is on the wrong horse in neglecting railway transportation and one-sidedly furthering the building of super-highways which in view of the fuel shortage are almost useless. They ask why the man who "foresees everything" made such inadequate preparations for the last winter in Russia. They wonder why the Nazi boast that enemy planes would never reach the vital spots of Germany has been answered by the raids on Luebeck, Rostock, Augsburg, and more recently Cologne and Essen.

But all this is not outright military defeat of Adolf Hitler. Shrewd politician that he is, he has been able in his public utterances to offer explanations that momentarily satisfy the masses. When there is nothing of moment in the way of local successes to report from Russia or Africa, the Hitler-controlled German press can feature and front-page Japanese claims of success in the Far East.

Needed: One Decisive Defeat

The picture is bound to change once a really decisive defeat is administered to Hitler's war machine; especially if one of his major strategic plans falls through beyond the peradventure of doubt.

For instance, inside Nazi circles before our departure from the war-ridden European continent two weeks ago were boasting of the "bag of tricks" which Der Fuehrer has been assembling during the long winter for surprising the Russians in the coming general offensive.

Well, Hitler surprised the French in the spring of 1940 by his tactics of surprise, of pincer movements, of sudden dashes through narrow sections of enemy territory from which the troops which followed could then gradually spread out fan-wise.

The "bag of tricks" worked. Many bewildered German souls now pathetically cling to the hope that the tricks thought out by wizard Hitler for finishing up Russia this spring and summer may prove just as effective.

Supposing, however, that the United Nations so harass Hitler on the western front with aerial bombardments and even with the establishment of a bridgehead on the continent that he can't fully open his bag of tricks for the east. And supposing that from this situation results a defeat so visible and palpable that even Goebbels' propagandists cannot hide it: the one man who will be made responsible is Adolf Hitler himself.

Defeat Is Hitler's

The build-up for this man, fostered diligently with his personal approval, has been too terrific for it to be otherwise. The slogan, assiduously fostered by the Nazi party, "Hitler ist Deutschland und Deutschland ist Hitler" (Hitler is Germany and Germany is Hitler) would then prove a boomerang. The common people of Germany, of this there can be no doubt, then would say,

"Hitler is defeat and defeat is Hitler."

No less a person than Reich Marshal Hermann Goering, heir apparent to the Hitler throne, wittingly or unwittingly has seen to it that Der Fuehrer—and he alone—is made responsible for Germany's defeat or victory. His introductory and closing words in the Reichstag session of April 26 came as near to pronouncing Adolf Hitler a deity as anything that has been uttered officially and in the presence of a group of men allegedly chosen by the free will of a people.

Take away the prop of invincibility and the Hitler statue will topple.

In this toppling process, the submerged anti-Nazi, of whom there are millions in the Reich, can play an important part, provided they are given encouragement by the western democracies.

Propaganda Block

The Goebbels propaganda carefully conceals from the German people that President Roosevelt has assured all peoples, including the German, liberty of conscience, assembly, speech and press, freedom from economic worry, cooperation in the reconstruction of a just and better world.

The United Nations may have many opportunities to enlist the cooperation of the "Front of Decent People" in Germany—a term that was beginning to go like wild-fire from lip to lip along grapevine channels when I left Germany.

Flashes of Life

Blind, He Sees Through a Thief

HONOLULU—(P)—Fong You Lee, the blind man who runs a city hall lobby concession, has a good memory for voices.

When he heard someone tampering with a dispensing machine he challenged and heard a boy's voice pipe, "Have you any gum?" The youth fled with 20 dimes.

Next day a voice called for ice cream. Fong You Lee seized the customer by the wrist and shouted for the police. It was the right voice and the right boy.

Just Plain Tears
HAGERSTOWN, Md.—(P)—Called to a nearby farm to destroy a dog which presumably had gone mad, Deputy Kenneth Stangle took careful aim and fired.

The dog just stood there—and cried.

So did a woman and her daughter standing nearby.

Even Stangle shed a few tears.

He discovered he had fired a tear gas shell.

Wiping away the tears he disposed of the dog with a real bullet.

Pearl Harbor Water To Christen Ships

HONOLULU—(P)—Not champagne, but water from Pearl Harbor, will christen one or more ships at Beaumont, Texas. The request came from John A. Mowat, who wrote the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce that "large and small, these ships go to avenge the attack on your city and harbor."

Everybody Sweeps Own Street

SANTA ANA, Calif.—(P)—Every householder his own street sweeper will be the order henceforth in Santa Ana.

The reason: Shortage of parts for the city's equipment.

Hints on Etiquette

It should not be necessary to remind people to receive gifts graciously, but many do not. Even if the gift is not altogether to your liking, you should remember that the donor chose it because he or she thought you would like it, and accept it graciously and with thanks.

Today's Horoscope

You are level-headed, deliberate in action, and always considerate of others. You enjoy reading, are a good talker, and have many loyal friends. You are also devoted to your loved ones. In the next year you will gain through the military, aeronautics, engineering, secret or novel pursuits, also through changes and travel. This will be an important and successful year, it is portended. The child who is born on this date will be exceptionally clever, in fact, a genius if born late in the day. Great success, popularity and a long and happy life are promised.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. It enables young people to continue school or college by providing part time jobs; and finds jobs for those who are out of school and in need of work.
2. Manuel Prado.
3. Herbert Hoover.

Some large movement must be in prospect requiring infantry. With the Pacific war zone so far away, we are not likely to be sending soldiers to General MacArthur. Our military chiefs have recently had another conference in London.

The signs seem to point to another A.E.F., perhaps an invasion of France from Northern Ireland. If it comes, it will complicate matters seriously for Hitler.

Migraine Headache and the Drinking of Water

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SEVERAL WEEKS ago I published a short excerpt from a sufferer from migraine headaches who said that he could mitigate or prevent attacks entirely by refraining from drinking water as soon as he had an indication that

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The headache was coming on. I asked at the time if any other of my readers had had such experiences and I have had a very large and generous response from people who have had the same experience.

There were too many of these letters for the results to be mere coincidence. So far as I know, I have never seen any reference to this in a textbook of medicine, but that is understandable because so many people with migraine or sick headache treat themselves and their remedies never get to the medical profession.

They probably start out by having a doctor when their attacks first begin but soon find that he does not give very much relief or that they can learn everything that he has to offer. For instance, in one of the letters that was sent me on the subject, a woman says that she and her family have moved seven times in the last 25 years and have consulted a great many doctors but she has never consulted one about her headaches.

Took Opium

A typical statement is as follows: "I suffered terribly from migraine for many years and it was necessary for me to take a great many opiates. I was always told to drink a lot of water but I got disgusted and quit it and found that my headaches were not nearly so severe, although they did not quit entirely. But when I force myself to drink water, they are always worse. I am writing this, hoping it might be a help to someone else."

Another one says, "I have had migraines since I was about 19 and am now 50. I cannot endure the thought of drinking water before the headaches start or during the worst of the pain and when water tastes good, I am sure the headache is over for that time. Another thing I have noticed is that the quickest way to get over the exhaustion from the pain and nausea is to eat very rare beef. My family have their laugh at Mother's day-after-a-headache diet of rare hamburger steak. My grandfather had these headaches, also."

my father who was an M.D., but could not cure his own migraine headaches. My sister has them, but my brother does not."

Other Letters

Another letter says: "I confirmed the fact that drinking water makes the headaches worse when one day I was coming out of church services and the minister advised me to drink a lot of water for my severe headache. I took his advice and as usual my headache became a lot worse. If I starve myself from water entirely, the headache is always less severe and sometimes I can prevent it entirely in this way."

These letters indicate some of the high points of that queer, queer disease, migraine. It is undoubtedly hereditary. It is a disease of the active part of life, usually beginning about the age of nineteen and usually stopping about the age of fifty.

The victim nearly always can tell when he is going to have a headache, so the admonition to stop water drinking can be obeyed in most instances early enough to do some good. While there are a number of different remedies which may help, such as the recently introduced ergotamine, there is no 100 per cent relief that works in all cases.

The cause of the disease is probably some upset in the chemistry of the body and it may very well be that a change in water balance could bring on the attacks. At any rate, abstinence from water can't do anybody any harm and I bring this experience forward for what it is worth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. C.: What are the symptoms of chronic appendicitis? Could a condition consisting of sluggishness, dull headaches, indigestion, frequent colds and bad breath be caused by appendicitis?

Answer: It is generally considered that chronic appendicitis does not exist. It is an easy way out of a diagnosis for functional indigestion due to a neurotic condition. The symptoms which you list are very likely symptoms which accompany a neurotic condition. I do not believe they are due to chronic appendicitis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendingen has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

MARG HAD said that Tibby looked pale and interesting, as one should, when in a hospital. Tibby was not sure as to the "interesting" part, but she certainly looked pale enough. She tried rubbing a little rouge into her cheeks and she put on the pretty shell pink jacket that Steena had brought her. She was expecting Wayne and so she must make some effort to sort of "perk" up. She would have to try to put on a brave exterior, since her interior felt so jittery.

When he finally came, after what seemed hours of waiting, not because of eagerness, but because of her anxiety, Tibby felt more ashamed than ever to think she had dreaded Wayne's return as she had.

As Marg had predicted, he did not seem concerned with anything as long as he found Tibby safe and sound. He did not even reproach her for having taken up the silver ship without asking him and in his absence. He did not so much as refer to it until Tibby herself brought it up.

"It was my fault," Tibby said, with her customary honesty. "It was perfect flying weather, Wayne. The ship was in perfect condition. I don't know what happened, even—but I do know that it was something within me that went wrong, that I did not wake up until it was too late."

That was the only explanation Tibby could give. It had been something within herself. She should have been able to have righted the ship after all Wayne's patient, expert teaching. Nothing had gone wrong with the motors. There had not been any disturbance in wind or altitude. She had been unstrung, upset; she had not been sleeping well, either. She had not been in shape, in other words, to pilot the silver ship.

Wayne said, his steel gray eyes kind and understanding, "You're not to think of that. As long as you are safe, my dear, nothing else is of any consequence. As for the ship, I had it heavily insured, so please do not fret about it."

But there was something more that she must tell him, honestly, without evasion. That was Tibby's way. It was something harder to say than that admission of guilt, yet she must say it. "There's something else," she said, her brown eyes meeting his, "something I'm even sorer about, Wayne—yet something I must tell you."

"Surely it will keep!" Humor lurked about his handsome mouth, his eyes smiled back into hers. "Do you like roses? I told them, as soon as I got the wire about the accident, to send all they had and to keep on sending them. They look more like you now than ever, my dear. Such delicate buds, their tint matching that soft flush in your cheeks, the shade of that jelly jacket you're wearing." "They're lovely," Tibby said, thanking him. But they had been like the pearl ring, too magnificent, too abundant. They had literally filled the small, bare room, stifling it with their heavy, heavy fragrance, so that, at night, Tibby had had to request the nurse to remove them.

Besides, although she could not say this to Wayne, roses were not Tibby's favorite flower. She liked something less cultivated, more natural, like mixed perennials, or the small bunch of violets that had come from Tommy. Everyone had been so thoughtful—the jacket from Steena, a basket of fruit from the more practical-minded Marg, a beautiful plant from the girls she had worked with—even a card from Miss Picklepus.

"I'm afraid this won't keep," Tibby said, returning to the task she had set herself. She had gone over and over the way she must tell him, but there was only one way. It might not seem the best, but it really was the kindest. "I can't marry you, Wayne," Tibby said simply, directly, as she had said, once before, that she would. "I thought I could, or I wouldn't have let you think I was going to. I thought I cared for you enough, but I find that I was mistaken."

"I told you it would keep, Wayne said. His tone was light, but she had not missed the look that had swept over his face. It had not been surprise. He had been afraid that it would be something like this that she had to tell him. "You are upset now, my dear," he told her. "Not yet yourself. You can't be sure of what you want. If it will help, I promise not to try to hurry you."

He had intended to hurry her as much as he could, for he had known that would be his only chance. He had known all along that he might not be able to win this girl. Not with such gifts as a silver ship, a magnificent pearl. Not though he gave her all his riches.

Tibby shook her head, but her gaze did not drop before his. "I'm sorry," she said again. "But that wouldn't help. Not now. You see—there is someone else. That's how I know. That's why I am so sure."

She had wondered how one could be sure. Now she knew. When love really came, when the heart finally spoke, there could not be the slightest doubt.

Wayne Courtright knew that, too, but, unlike Tibby, so inexperienced, he had known this all along. He had known all the time that she did not love him, but he had wanted her anyway, this young girl who was his lost country. He had been willing to take the risk that she might never come to care as he did. He had put up a good fight, but he was also a good loser.

He said, "If that's the way it is, my dear, it's all right." His gray eyes still smiled into hers. "That isn't your fault, either. You must not try to take the blame or feel so sorry." He had thought he could always make every ending be the one he wanted. At least he could make this one as gallant, as brave as the heart of this girl whom he would always go on loving. Not that Wayne would let this wreck his life, or break his heart. His life was too full; his heart too brittle, but he would not forget her, the sweetness of this love—not in ten or in twenty years. He would, perhaps, think of her—her soft brown eyes with their shining stars, the tremulous curve of her lips—when he lay dying. It would be a lovely memory, one well worth having treasured.

"You're very kind," Tibby said. She knew she ought to say more than that. It was not nearly enough for how kind he was. She need not have been afraid to tell him. She need not have dreaded his return. He still, in a way, was that stranger who sometimes stood between them. He still was that someone apart, exciting and different.

"There's something I'd like you to do for me," she said shyly, yet daringly, too. It was daring, to ask this of him. It might not work out, but it was worth this effort. She could not say goodbye to him without asking it.

He told her she knew that she had only to ask, and he would do anything he could for her. He knew, too, that this was goodbye. He was glad if there was something she wished to ask of him.

"I gave my ring to Steena," Tibby said, holding out her hand to prove its absence, a hand that looked as it should now, unburdened with such an incongruous ornament. "I asked her to keep it for me, but I hoped that you would get it from her."

She did not give Wayne her reasons, any more than she had Steena. Yet she hoped he would take it as a natural enough request, too, without asking her why she asked it of him.

He said, "I'll do that—and thank you, my dear." If he thought it a strange request, he did not show that he did, unless by that odd little twist of his handsome mouth. Undoubtedly he did know her reason. She wanted him to see Steena again. She hoped he would again be friends with her, more than friends, maybe.

Of course Wayne would not ask Steena to give back the ring. He would ask her, rather, to wear it. Why not? He had known all along that Steena Winters would make him a more fitting wife than Miss Elizabeth Lane. He knew that if Tibby had not loved him that Steena had. He had never been fooled by her cleverness, not even by that clipping she had sent him. However, all that was in the future, heavy, problematical, depending upon this war in which Wayne would be engaged, having accepted a position in Washington, upon fate, which no one can predict.

World's Tallest Man Going to School

By CHRIS EDMONDS

(Wide World News Service)

MILWAUKEE.—The world's tallest man still wants to get up in the world—so he's going back to school to become an attorney. He's already up quite a way—8 feet, 7 inches—but Cliff Thompson isn't satisfied with his present life as a traveling salesman for a Milwaukee brewing company. He wants to "get into a profession where I can settle down in a home of my own."

This business of riding about the country in an automobile specially-built to accommodate his long legs and sleeping at night kitty-corner on two hotel beds pulled together is getting monotonous.

So, June 8, he entered the law school at Marquette University to study for a degree permitting him to practice in Milwaukee. He expects two years' study will do it. It probably will, since Marquette has instituted a new plan to shorten the law course and permit earlier graduation, and Cliff already has a degree from Stevens Point (Wis.) Teachers College.

The 37-year-old giant will live with his wife—she's only 5 feet, 3 1/2 inches tall—in a third-floor flat there. Cliff has the place all ready for occupancy, one of the principal pieces of furniture being a nine-foot bed specially constructed and presented to him several months ago in Flint, Michigan.

Cliff registered for the draft at Waupaca, Wis., where he happened to be on registration day.

Naturally, there was some excitement when he appeared. There were some wisecracks—like "Here's a one-man army," and "gosh, what an airplane spotter you'd make." Cliff didn't mind. He's used to such remarks. He was with a circus once.

Classified now in 3-A, the young tall man doesn't know whether he'll ever be called for service. It's unlikely he will, because of his height, but if the government needs him he'll serve "wherever I can be of use," he says.

Mrs. Thompson will accompany her husband to law school just as she has been doing on his trips throughout his sales territory. She's going to take a course in law secretarial work to qualify her to serve as his secretary when he enters practice.

So it'll be strictly a one-family firm.

Gold Star Mothers Are Honored by Legion Auxiliary

When the American Legion Auxiliary met at the Memorial Hall, Wednesday night, Mrs. Nell Paul presented a delightful program. Mrs. Paul, as chairman of Flag Day, opened her program with "The Origin of Our Flag" and during her talk displayed flags of various periods of our country in the making. Then Mrs. Annetta Rowe was introduced and she gave in a pleasing manner a forceful speech on "Our Women Must Stand Guard". In closing her talk Mrs. Rowe read a beautiful poem and dedicated it to the Gold Star Mothers. Miss Eleanor Paul and Miss Jennie Howells, of Athens, delighted the audience with a vocal duet, "How Betsy Ross Made Our Flag." Miss Howells closed the program with a beautifully rendered vocal solo, "Indian Love Call".

Members and guests then were served delicious refreshments. Tables were decorated with red, white and blue flowers and plates were decorated with American flags as a favor for each one present.

Mrs. Ruth Schnell was chairman of the social committee.

Picnic Supper Held Wednesday At Gardner Park

The women of the YM-YW knitting and sewing classes held a very enjoyable picnic supper at Gardner Park on Wednesday evening.

The guests all came with well-filled hampers, and the sumptuous feast was relished to the utmost, with added pleasure of eating in the open.

The guests included Mrs. Charles Stewardson, Miss Ethel Stewardson, Mrs. Leonard Dellinger, Mrs. Nina Merz, Mrs. Bernice Brookover, Mrs. Bertha Smith, Mrs. Homer Bireley, Mrs. Bertha Bireley, Mrs. Virgil Mitchem, Miss Betty Mitchem, Mrs. Leo Fedigan, Mrs. Lee Salisbury, Mrs. Richard Willis, and Mrs. J. Enjoyable Fish Fry
Mr. T. H. Craig, Sr., Mr. David S. Craig, Mr. Walter Craig and Mr. Maynard Craig, combined hospitalities Wednesday evening when they entertained with an out-door supper at the beautiful summer grounds of Cedarhurst.

The supper was a fish fry, with all the additional good dishes provided, and the aroma of the cooking fish on the oven and the cool atmosphere of the spacious grounds, added to the evening's pleasures.

Informal visiting in the shaded yard, with reminiscing, and revealing earlier activities in and about Washington C. H., afforded much pleasure to the group, who were Mr. Ray Maynard, Mr. Werter Shoop, Mr. Leonard Korn, Dr. James Silcott, Mr. Fred Rost, Mr. John Sands and Mr. J. R. Burton.

Informal Dance

Another informal dance is scheduled for the Washington Country Club Saturday evening, and is looked forward to with much pleasure and keen anticipation.

The spacious club house, with chairs and tables arranged on the porch and in the yard, will be most popular to the group of dancers, who are planning to attend.

Though the nights have been unusually warm, the Country Club is always several degrees cooler than in town, and has been an exceptionally popular place.

Music will be furnished by the record-player with all the up-to-date hits furnished.

'Dances of 1942' Presented By Emerson Ludwick School Of Dancing Wednesday

Washington High School Auditorium Filled for Annual Event of Students of the Dance; Program Well Presented

Ninety talented and well-trained youngsters tapped their way into approval before an audience filling to capacity the Washington High School auditorium, when the Emerson Ludwick School of Dancing presented its annual revue "Dances of 1942."

The program was two and one-half hours long, but because of the distinction and difference of each number, the time passed by too quickly.

As usual, the costumes were gorgeous creations of brilliant colors, with the Victory red, white and blue, used in many various styles.

Mrs. Peggy Miller, who is in charge of the tap department in absence of Corporal Ludwick, was commended highly on her work with the youngsters and Mrs. Jarmila DeBolt, professional ballet artist, presented her pupils in lovely and graceful numbers.

Mrs. Rex Pittenger competently accompanied at the piano, and Mrs. Marian Gage preceded the program with several numbers on the organ, and again during the intermission.

Effective lighting effects were done by Donald Ribber, Patti Maddux and David Ellis.

From the opening number "Sweet Lullaby" followed by a Hula dance to "I'll See You In My Dreams" finale by the entire company, the program moved swiftly and smoothly.

"Sweet Lullaby" opened the program, sung by Jane Pittenger, with the Hula dance by Rebecca Jane Armbrust, Nancy Barney, Audrey Beedy, Jo Lynn Parrett, June Powless, Mary Lou Secrets, Annette Sullivan, and Barbara Sue Willis. Concluding this number was a graceful Hula Tap by Joyce Jamison and Nancy Lee Hewitt.

Jean Hall was next with a "Rhythm," followed by the three young maids, Ann Dews, Elizabeth Ann Loudner and Beatrice Van Zant in "Spanish Babies."

"Sweet Rhythm" was most capably performed by Joan Scott Gaskins and later in the program she presented the difficult "Red Rhythm."

As usual "The Rattlebox Brigade" brought forth much applause, performed by four three-year-olds, who looked like big dolls on the stage. They were Natacha Badgely, Zana Coudrey, Milena DeBolt, and Jacqueline Hoppes.

Patty Robinson and Ralph Sommers were two very young dancers, and gave their "Just Friends" admirably. A soft shoe tap was given by Harriett Burgess.

Jane Ann presented three delightful numbers during the evening, first a "Rosebud Tap," a "Gavotte," and "Swingopated Steps."

"Sparkle Steps," by Shirley Tennenbaum and Rosemary Todhunter, a "Dutch Dance" by Linda Brown, and Carolyn Sue McNutt, and a "Waltz Clog" by Virginia Lee Mann were exceptionally well done, with their pretty costumes adding to the numbers.

"You're a Sap Mr. Jap," sung by Patty Boso, which she followed with a military tap, "Orchid Rhythm" by Teresa Uhl and "Polka Dot Walk," by Shirley Rickman, Patti Garringer, Dickie Lloyd and Judith Hale Rost were given a big hand.

Peggy Miller and Marilyn Van Voorhis gracefully did a Gypsy dance, followed by a fast tap by Paul Lucas.

"3/4 Time," by Marcia Lynn Fletcher, Tap Time, by Cecil Happen, "Easy Does It," by Donna Andrews, Ann James, Nancy James and Faye Ann Sagar were very pretty numbers.

Joan Ludwig in "I Don't Want To Walk Without You," a "Strut"

Harriett Burgess, Marilyn Harrison, and Teresa Uhl gave a fast "Chattanooga Choo Choo."

Buddy Carr, another advanced pupil, sang "For My Sunday Gal" and followed it with an exceptionally difficult tap, handling the very difficult steps with a smooth ability. His encore was given equally as much applause having shown rare ability in his performance.

"Rainbow Tap" by Donna Borden, Robert Humphreys, Patsy Mercer, Belinda Rider, Joan Smith, Louanna Stokes and Beverlee Tennenbaum was a beautiful number, easily presented.

"Moonlight Cocktail" sung and danced by Phyllis Pittenger and Doris Steed was one of the outstanding hits of the show. Their lovely costumes, their delightful harmony and unusual ability as dancers combined to make it exceptional.

"How About You" was sung and danced by Helen Hollis, Joanne Arnold presenting a "Toe Polka"

RATION BOARD TO STAY OPEN TWO EVENINGS

Daytime Workers Are To Be Given Opportunity To Get
Sugar for Canning

For the convenience of those families who, it is believed will benefit most from the foods they can lay away this summer for the winter months ahead, the Fayette County Rationing Board has arranged to keep its headquarters open in the evenings for at least two nights this week, Ralph R. Penn, the rationing administrator has just announced.

The office in the Courthouse basement, he said, would be open from 6 P. M. until 9 P. M. Thursday and Friday for those who work during the day and, thus, cannot get in to make their applications for sugar for canning without undue inconvenience, if at all. Penn made it plain that the evening hours were for "workers only" and said that no applications would be taken from those who could get in during the day.

He expressed the hope that the general public would refrain from coming to the office in the evening "out of fairness to those who cannot get in any other time." He explained that it would be impossible to keep open every evening and pointed out that the clerical staff members were giving their time to make canning sugar available to those who work during regular hours by coming in in the evening.

He repeated, as he made the announcement of the evening period, that applicants for canning must bring with them the regular War Ration Books (those through which sugar for household use is purchased) for every member of the family with them. He explained, however, that these were merely a guide for the board in considering the application for canning sugar and that none of the coupons or stamps would be required.

SUNDAY METHODIST STUDENT LOAN DAY

Will Be Seventy-first Annual Observance

Methodists in this community as well as more than 8,000,000 Methodists in over 43,000 churches throughout the country will mark the 71st annual observance of Methodist Student Day Sunday. Contributions that day will go to the Student Loan Fund to assist those students who otherwise might not be able to continue their college education.

This year's observance of Methodist Student Day, originally known as Children's or College Day, will serve a double purpose, Doctor Harry Wright McPherson, director of the fund in Nashville, said.

"Donations may be made in defense saving stamps and bonds," he said, "not only providing for the immediate aid of our country but building toward its future security and happiness."

The fund had its humble origin in 1872 and the following year 22 students received $300 toward their college fees. In the ensuing 70 years the fund has loaned more than $9,000,000 to over 60,000 students.

Loan recipients range from bishops to missionaries and from college presidents to all branches of professional men and women. At the present time, nearly 40 bishops and college presidents in 28 states and in India are among those who received help in their college years.

That satisfied smile on the face of Bob Hope means but one thing—he gets the girl. That precedent shattering event occurs in Paramount's latest laugh film, "My Favorite Blonde," opening Sunday at the new State Theatre. His favorite blonde, of course, is Madeleine Carroll who portrays a beautiful British secret agent engaged in a catch-as-catch-can race with a gang of Nazi spies. Bob, a ham vaudevillian, gets tangled up in the doings and the result is one of the funniest comedies of this or any other movie season.

Demonstrations To Groove Gardens Arranged

OSU BOTANIST TO COME HERE ON NEXT MONDAY

County's School Garden To Be Gathering Place for Evening Demonstration.

Following up the program of the Victory Gardens in the county, demonstrations have been arranged by County Agent Montgomery, on the control of garden insects and diseases throughout the county.

Two demonstrations have been scheduled for Monday, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.

The afternoon demonstration at 2:30 o'clock will be held at the Donald Moore truck garden, Plymouth Pike (Plymouth farm), one mile from the Chaffin School. The evening demonstration at 7:30 o'clock will be held at the School Garden Project at the County Farm on the Columbus Highway.

Professor Richard S. Davidson, of the department of botany and entomology, Ohio State University, will be present at these demonstrations and will deliver a lecture on the control of garden insects and diseases which will be followed up with an actual demonstration of the use of various dusters and dusting material for garden insect control. Copies of printed material will be furnished all those who attend. The demonstrations will be held rain or shine. Women, who spend so much time and effort in the home Victory Gardens are particularly urged to attend. Prof. Davidson's lecture will be of extreme importance to everyone in the county growing a home garden. The gardeners in and around Washington C. H. are urged to attend either one of these demonstrations, by Montgomery.

The demonstration in the evening has been arranged purposely for people who work during the day or find themselves too busy to go in the afternoon. Workers and farm people have been asked to wear old clothes. No fancy shoes or dress at this garden party.

Protect the Garden
The garden is the most productive plot of ground on the farm. It should furnish the family with an adequate supply of vegetables and small fruits so necessary to maintain healthy bodies. The surplus can be stored for winter use. It is a patriotic duty to provide the vegetables needed for home consumption and thus release the canned goods for our armed forces and allies.

There are only a few materials needed to control insects of vegetable crops. Rotenone dust will solve many insect problems and a supply of this should be kept on hand. Since the nation's supply of rotenone is limited, it should not be wasted. Nicotine sulfate is needed for plant lice. Arsenicals, fluorine products, and copper compounds have important and special uses on certain crops. They may be very necessary in certain seasons and should be purchased if and when needed.

Over 1000 cards are being mailed to Victory Garden co-operators.

PENNSYLVANIA CREW IS MOVING EASTWARD
The Pennsylvania Railroad crew, which has been working in this city for several weeks, has moved eastward and is now making improvements along the road around Johnsons' Crossing.

Extensive improvements in and about the freight station here were included in the program of betterments.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICE FLAG TO BE UNFURLED

Program To Be Presented Sunday Morning To Blend Religion and Patriotism

Plans were taking form today for appropriate exercises for dedicating the service flag at the First Baptist Church here next Sunday morning.

Miss Mabel Briggs, one of the prime movers, said "this is to be a service for everybody and everyone in the church is helping to arrange it."

The service flag, is to have blue stars for the boys in camps at home and silver stars for the boys in foreign lands, sewed on the red bordered white field.

A scroll is to be placed in the vestibule of the church listing the names of the soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen and fliers for whom stars have put in the flag.

How many stars there will be is not yet definitely known. Miss Briggs said that she and other women on the committee had been trying for days to make up a list that would be complete, but she added that she was afraid some would be missed. She expressed the hope that families of Baptist boys in the service would call her. She said there were no "hard and fast rules" or requirements for making up the list—just the boys who have gone to Sunday School or church there in the past or whose families have attended church are wanted on the scroll and flag. With three days yet to go, indications were that there would be between 15 and 20 stars on the flag. Miss Briggs said with a solemn note of feeling: "And we all hope there never will be a gold star on it."

The program for the unfurling of the flag and the hanging of the scroll is to be "simple, informal and Democratic," but the details have not been entirely worked out yet. This much is certain—either soldiers or descendants of soldiers of all American wars are to have some part in it. There will be congregational singing of both hymns and patriotic songs and anthems by the choir and, unless the plans are changed, the congregation will recite the preamble to the Constitution in unison. Harold Robinson will conduct the service and Rev. W. H. Wilson, the retired pastor of the church, probably will offer prayer and deliver the invocation and benediction. There is to be no speaker, in the formal sense of the word, it was said, and there is to be no sermon. In a general way, the program now in the making was described as one "for everybody in which everybody can participate and enjoy," with a blending of patriotism and religion.

Church Softball League Now Made Up of 4 Teams

Only two nights a week, Monday and Wednesday, will there be two games in the softball leagues, Tommy Doyle, YMCA recreation director, said, because of a change of the teams in the Church League.

As it was previously scheduled, five teams were in this league — Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Church of Christ and St. Colman. However, the Baptists failed to organize a team and dropped out of the league.

There are eight teams in the Industrial League, which plays the first four evening of every week, and only four in the Church League. Therefore, the Church League will only play two games a week.

The Industrial League games will start at 8:30 P. M. as originally scheduled, or possibly a few minutes before, Doyle said. The Church League games, on Monday and Wednesday nights, will begin at 7 P. M.

A new Church League schedule is being worked out.

Next week's games include: June 15—Church of Christ vs. St. Colman's.

June 17—Methodist vs. Presbyterian.

Forest Shade Grangers Swamped by Albers Boys

The Alber's outfit of the Industrial League took the softball game from the Forest Shade Grangers Wednesday night by a score of 19 to 2. This was the only game scheduled in both leagues.

The Grangers got off to a slow start, with one run and no hits in the first inning. The last half, the Alber boys got 3 hits and 4 runs and in the second, barged further ahead with 4 hits and 3 more runs.

In the first of the fourth the Grangers got another run, their half, and two hits but, in their last, the Alber crew added 3 more hits and runs.

High scoring honors of the evening went to Denny of the Alber team for a homer, a double and three singles in five times at bat. Second honors went to Chase of the same team with triples and a single in four trips to the plate.

Thursday at 8:30 P. M. the Madison Mills Grangers will go against the Cudary team. This is the only game scheduled for the evening.

Home Run Wallop Wins for Brewers

(By the Associated Press)

Another postponement kept the Kansas City Blues, current champions of the American Association, idle again last night and Milwaukee seized the opportunity to improve its second place position.

Facing Louisville, the Brewers found it no cinch, and it took leftfielder Bill Norman's clout over the left field fence to turn the trick, 4-3.

In the loop's only other contest, Toledo beat St. Paul, 10 to 3.

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, June 11—An idea—and a big hand. . . When an army detachment moved in at the field where West Seattle High School athletes perform, the kids looked around and saw that the soldiers were shy on athletic equipment. . . So they passed the hat and collected $38.92—not a lot, but enough to get a few games going. . . Most of you folks have an army or navy outfit somewhere near, so how about taking a tip from the high school kids? . . . Charley Hunter, the San Francisco Olympic club coach, predicts that Cornelius Warmerdam will achieve that 16-foot pole vault during his coming eastern tour, if the weather is hot enough. . . Hunter says Connie finally has mastered vaulting with a 13 foot ten inch grip.

Service Dept.

The Marines have landed: When Marine Sergeant Farmer Seale, former Birmingham sports writer, learned that his outfit was trailing the army and navy in this dept., he passed the word along and a memo from southern recruiting division headquarters suggested contributions were in order. . . The next mail brought the news that a detachment led by Staff Sgt. Herbert Breeden, who used to play football for Ole Miss, had invaded Rollins College in Florida and signed up the entire first string grid team for the Marine Corps Reserve. . . Word comes via the sporting news that army baseball at Fort Riley, Kans., carries the light touch. When Pvt. Ed Cole, former Brownie, was pitching a night game against a semi-pro club, the opponents protested because Cole's army identification tag had slipped outside his shirt and the reflection was bothering the batters. . . And when the lights were turned on at 9 P. M. for another game, Pvt. Joe Gantenbein, formerly of the Athletics, wisecracked: "Any errors made by our club this evening won't be coincidental; in the barracks they turn out the lights at this time."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Hitler found out that his high powered mechanized and motorized army bogged down in the snow and mud of the Russian Winter. Although our Army is largely mechanized the cavalry horse is still a highly essential factor in this mounted division and in the Field Artillery. The Army also maintains re-mount farms where many cavalry horses are bred and raised.

These select horses cost from $100 to $165 and our crack cavalrymen are expert riders and carry on the traditions which have followed the cavalry from the earliest days of the Army. Purchase of War Savings Bonds will insure good mounts for the Cavalry. You and your neighbors buying War Bonds and Stamps regularly every pay day can help buy these horses for the U. S. Cavalry. ROGER CRAMER BATS HIS WAY TO HONOR ROLL

Tiger Outfielder's Three Hits Puts Him Over 2,000-hit Mark

By JUDSON BAILEY (By The Associated Press)

Step by step the present stars of the major leagues are finding their way into the hallowed company of baseball's old-time all-time standouts.

The latest to earn a place on the permanent honor roll is Roger (Doc) Cramer, the Detroit Tigers' outfielder, who made three hits against the New York Yankees yesterday to lift his lifetime total to 2,001, a level that has been reached by only seven other players still active in the major leagues.

Dick Bartell of the New York Giants entered the 2,000 hit class in April and Mel Ott, Paul and Lloyd Waner, Jimmie Foxx, Joe Cronin and Charley Gehring already were there. Joe Medwick and Billy Herman of Brooklyn have a good chance of qualifying near the end of the season.

Only 77 on Roll

Cramer reached it in his 14th year in the American League. Paul (Big Poison) Waner, in his 17th season, needs only five hits to total 3,000, including Cramer, just 77 batters in the history of the major leagues have passed 2,000 hits, but only six have reached Waner's goal. Everyone that made it now is memorialized in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown—W. Cobb, Tris Speaker, Ionus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Nap Lajoie and Cap Anson.

The three hits by Cramer were important, but they had nothing to do with the tigers beating the world champions, 4-1. The blows that counted were a homer in the fifth by Jim Biocourt and another by Ned Harris with two on in the 11th.

It was the first time this year that the Yanks had been beaten in extra innings.

Braves Lose 9th

Paul Waner notched his 2,995th hit last night, but his Boston mates collected only three others off Rip Sewell, who pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-0 shutout over the Braves, their ninth straight loss. In another night game the New York Giants climbed into a third place tie in the national league by beating Cincinnati, 6 to 1. They're now even with the Reds.

Big Bill Lee acquired his eighth victory of the season as the Chicago Cubs rallied for five runs in the seventh inning to beat the Phils, 5-2.

Weather kept the Brooklyn Dodgers idle at St. Louis again. The Boston Red Sox reinforced their hold on second place in the American League by trimming the St. Louis Browns, 10-3. All the losers' runs off Tex Hughson came on a homer by Mike Chartak.

The Chicago White Sox made the Philadelphia Athletics exchange places in the cellar by beating the A's, 4-1.

The Cleveland Indians, held scoreless for eight innings by Buck Newsom, moved ahead with a three-run rally in the ninth, but had to go 12 innings to beat the Washington Senators 4-3, in a night game.

MEXICO TO JOIN ALLIES WITH FLAG DAY PLEDGE

WASHINGTON, June 11—(AP)—Mexico will formally pledge her adherence to the cause of the United Nations at a Flag Day ceremony at the White House next Sunday.

President Roosevelt has asked the representatives of all the United Nations to gather in the historic east room Sunday afternoon, it was announced today at the White House.

Giants Climb Into Tie with Reds by Win

CINCINNATI, June 11.—(AP)—It seems there's more to looking good in the National League than winning six straight from the Boston Braves and losing a pair of tight ones to the Phils.

The Cincinnati Reds may conclude that after dropping their second straight to the New York Giants, who apparently hadn't heard of the rejuvenation of the Cincinnati pitching staff.

The score last night was New York 6, Cincinnati 1, and it was the same old story—no hits with men on base. The Reds left 11 stranded.

However, the Giants, behind the steady pitching of Hal Schurtz, rapped out timely hits despite Johnny Vander Meer's feat of striking out eight men in seven innings. In the eighth they climbed on Ray Starr and Joe Beggs.

The victory brought the Giants into a third-place tie with the Reds.

The Reds and the Chicago Cubs will put on a show for their Army-Navy relief efforts June 30. There'll be a doubleheader, starting at 6 P. M., with a picked Red-Cub team playing the Great Lakes Naval Training Station outfit. A demonstration of battle action by troops from Fort Knox, Ky., also is scheduled.

The Cubs and Reds will play a regular game, too.

Jeffersonville Court and Diamond Ace Performs before Cincinnati Reds Scouts

Carl Creamer, the Jeffersonville "wonder boy" of basketball and baseball, is taking their steps toward a career in baseball as a profession Thursday in Cincinnati.

He is known all over the state for his aptness on the hardwood and on the diamond. He led his teammates to victory in most of their athletic contests and now is out to make a name for himself.

Thursday morning he went to Cincinnati to perform before some of the Red's scouts and his friends and family here in Fayette County are waiting to hear the results of his first introduction into the major leagues.

Carl Creamer

Creamer was forward on the basketball team and pitcher on the baseball team for Jeffersonville High School. He is widely known through the state and county for his skill in both sports.

BLOODY SEE-SAW BATTLES RAGING IN BOTH LIBYA AND RUSSIA—CHINA TOO (Continued from Page One)

however, that Hitler had started a full-scale blitz offensive along the whole front. In aerial warfare, RAF night raiders attacked German air-dromes in the low countries, and military targets in Nazi-occupied France. Bad weather prevented long-range forays against Germany for the second night in a row. Other RAF bombers raided the big Taranto naval base, in south-east Italy, for the third successive night.

War in China China's bloody five-year-old war with Japan has cost the Japanese more than 2,000,000 killed and wounded up to the end of 1941, the Chinese ministry of information announced in London today.

Chinese casualties have been at least as great, a spokesman said, but Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek still has more than 300 divisions under arms, with 5,000,000 soldiers in the field and 10,000,000 more men behind the lines.

On the fighting front, Chinese dispatches reported that the ancient walled city of Chubien, key rail center in western Cheiang province, "is still in our hands" despite heavy attacks by Japanese invasion columns.

Battle of Australia Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced the probable sinking of another Japanese submarine—the ninth enemy undersea raider destroyed in Australian waters recently—and reported new Allied air attacks on enemy bases.

Coincidentally, Japan's reputation for veracity appeared to have slumped even in Berlin as the German radio broadcast Stockholm reports discounting the Japanese boasts of victory in the battle of Midway and Tokyo hints that Japanese troops had landed in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska.

The broadcast cited American viewpoints that "after the naval battle in the Coral Sea and heavy losses in the attacks on Midway Island, the Japanese had lost so much of their combined military fighting power that they could not attempt a successful invasion."

June 4. He now is safely back home, the White House said. The statement released today was approved by both Molotov and Mr. Roosevelt and withheld until the former had returned. The discussions entered into while the foreign commissary was a secret guest at the White House apparently ranged over the whole field of military and economic problems of mutual concern to the two nations.

Mr. Roosevelt, at their conclusion, asked Molotov to inform Stalin that the Chief Executive "feels these conversations have been most useful in establishing a basis for fruitful and closer relationship between the two governments in the pursuit of the common objectives of the United States."

The members of the official Soviet mission to this country were not announced, the White House statement referring only to the Molotov "party."

But participating in the discussions here were Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet ambassador to the United States, whom Molotov succeeded as foreign commissary in April, 1939; Harry Hopkins, key advisor to the President on supply problems; General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the Navy, and, in the non-military zone of conversations, Secretary of State Hull.

In aerial warfare, RAF night raiders attacked German air-dromes in the low countries, and military targets in Nazi-occupied France. Bad weather prevented long-range forays against Germany for the second night in a row. Other RAF bombers raided the big Taranto naval base, in south-east Italy, for the third successive night.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Equipment in clothing for our American flyers costs about $250 for every aviator, so it takes a lot of money for our rapidly increasing air force. This clothing is especially manufactured of horse-hide jackets and trousers, fleece lined.
The kit also includes a "B-70" which is a complete jacket and trousers zipper suit, also made of horsehide and is fleece lined. Two pairs of shoes, helmet, goggles and other lesser equipment complete the ensemble. Your purchases of War Bonds, at least ten percent of your income every pay day, will help buy these outfits for our flyers everywhere, for our Army and Navy needs thousands of them.

RURAL YOUTH GROUP HOLDS BARN DANCE

Guests from Clinton County Join Party

An old-fashioned barn dance was featured at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Rural Youth Group of the 4-H Club when it met at the home of Lois Cavinee on the Leesburg Road.

The quadrille, schottische, polka, round dance and the modern "jitterbug" dancing was enjoyed by the large number of members and guests. An orchestra was furnished for the gingham and overall party. Bales of straw served as chairs.

Marlyn Witt, the president of the group, presided over the business meeting and Marvin Peterson of the Clinton County Rural Youth Group invited the members of the Fayette Group to a "lawn party" at his home, Saturday, June 13. It is a "tri-county" party.

It could not be decided when to have the next meeting so the county agent, W. W. Montgomery stated that he would contact each

FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE TAXES DUE ONCE MORE

This Time Rose-colored Stamps Provided Will Cost $5

Every owner of a motor vehicle that is in use, including motorcycles, must pay $5 for a special motor vehicle tax stamp to be placed on the car sometime during June.

Earlier this year the special tax on motor vehicles cost $2.09 and the green stamp was good for six months.

The six months will expire June 30, and the new stamp, costing $5 and good for one year, must be on every motor vehicle in use by July 1, or the owner be subject to a very heavy fine.

The stamps this time are rose-colored, and are now on sale at the Washington C. H. Post Office. They will also be on sale at other post offices throughout the county, state and nation.

This time it will not be necessary to fill out a card to be mailed to the collector of internal revenue.

Instead there is space on the back of the stamps to fill out the make, model, engine number and state license number and this must be filled in by the owner.

FIREMEN AND POLICE SEEK WAGE INCREASE

Both Departments Request $25 Month Extra in Appeal Made

At the regular session of city council, Wednesday night, both the city firemen and police presented requests for a salary increase of $25 per month, and the request was taken under advisement.

The application presented by the fire department and signed by the seven firemen gave the following reason for the increase desired, and this was echoed by the police department:

"The reason for this request is that the cost of living has increased greatly in the past six months and has almost doubled in some respects."

Council discussed the proposed increase at some length, and City Manager Edwin Ducey stated that the appropriations for the general year unless increased revenues above those anticipated could be found.

He estimated the increased cost at around $4,000 per year.

After discussing the proposed increase for sometime, Ducey suggested that a certificate be obtained from the county budget commission as to whether or not increased revenues over and above those anticipated, would be available this year to permit the increase.

Robert H. Sites, who presided at the session in the absence of Chairman S. A. Murry, named City Manager Ducey and City Auditor G. B. Rodgers to confer with the County Auditor and other members of the budget commission and report at the next session of council.

If funds are not available for the increase in salary asked by members of the two departments such increase might necessarily be carried over for inclusion in the budget of 1943, it was indicated.

Other matters were discussed briefly during the session.
